Ethics requirements - Humans / Protection of Personal Data

Detailed information must be provided on the informed consent procedures that will be implemented

OpenCare does not envision any direct intervention on human subjects, and should such an activity emerge as a proposal from the community experiment, it will be formalized in detail by the management of the consortium together with the relevant partner, and submitted to the evaluation of the relevant/s ethical committee/s before receiving a green light.

However, the community itself could run activities affecting human individuals. The Consortium is aware of the challenges of accountability at the border of its own organization, and will periodically share information and invites to disclose eventual initiatives in advance, in search of advice from the consortium members.

The funneling procedure for consent by the users includes a clear disclaimer that Opencare is not a source of instruction for care, or substitute to education, and medical and legal advice, in order to reduce the risk of experiments informed by a misunderstanding of the scopes of the proposed social platform.

Each user that will log on the platform for first time will be confronted to the disclaimer, also called « Consent funnel ».
Following the approval of the user, a date of consent is recorded within his/her personal profile.

User information on privacy and legal terms will also be published on the opencare.cc webpage.
